

EXPLORE

the community created for counselors

As a counselor, you help people every day with personal, social, educational and career concerns. You're focused on them, but who's looking out for you?

That's where the American Counseling Association comes in. ACA is the world's largest organization for professional counselors and has been there to advocate for you and the profession since 1952 — then, today and tomorrow. Representing and serving counselors is our main mission.

Your membership gives you the resources to increase your knowledge, advocate for the profession and advance your career at the same time.
