The American Counseling Association will not knowingly engage in any activities that discriminate on the basis of ethnic group, race, religion, gender, sexual orientation, age, and/or disability.
edited by Courtland C. Lee

This widely adopted, seminal text builds on the strengths of previous editions and offers sound direction from leading experts for multicultural practice with diverse client groups in a variety of settings. Fully updated and inclusive of feedback from educators and practitioners, this edition goes to the core of what constitutes culturally competent counseling and interventions with the following groups:

- African Americans
- Latinos/as
- Asian and Pacific Islanders
- American Indians
- Arab Americans
- Multiracial individuals and families
- Women and men
- LGBQT clients
- People with disabilities
- Deaf populations
- Older people
- Economically disadvantaged clients
- Military personnel

Case studies and innovative counseling techniques throughout the text emphasize the development of a productive working alliance between counselors and their clients, personal awareness and skill building, and practical application. Chapters on framing ethical issues in a multicultural context and increasing global literacy conclude the book.

Experiential Activities for Teaching Multicultural Competence in Counseling edited by Mark Pope, Joseph S. Pangelinan, and Angela D. Coker

“This is the text that I have always needed for teaching multicultural courses and workshops. The array of activities and handouts is outstanding and provides endless ideas to keep teaching fresh and alive, while driving the most critical concepts home.”

—Allen E. Ivey, EdD, ABPP
Distinguished University Professor (Emeritus)
University of Massachusetts, Amherst

This practical resource is for faculty teaching beginning and advanced multicultural counseling courses or other core classes who want to infuse issues of cultural diversity into the classroom. It contains 121 engaging and thought-provoking activities on a wide variety of multicultural topics. All exercises are tied to the core content areas of the 2009 CACREP Standards, making this a perfect tool for the clinical training of counseling students. A CD-ROM with activity handouts in a PDF format accompanies the book for ease of copying and distribution in the classroom.

edited by Craig S. Cashwell and J. Scott Young

“This book is full of excellent case examples and practical suggestions based on current research as well as the authors’ clinical and teaching experiences. It is an invaluable resource for the competent, ethical practice of addressing spiritual and religious issues in the assessment and counseling of individuals from diverse backgrounds.”
—Harriet L. Glosoff, PhD
Montclair State University

In this book, experts discuss how spiritual and religious issues can be successfully integrated into counseling in a manner that is respectful of client beliefs and practices. Designed as an introductory text for counselors-in-training and clinicians, it describes the knowledge base and skills necessary to effectively engage clients in an exploration of their spiritual and religious lives to further the therapeutic process. Through an examination of the 2009 ASERVIC Competencies for Addressing Spiritual and Religious Issues in Counseling and the use of evidence-based tools and techniques, this book will guide you in providing services to clients presenting with these deeply sensitive and personal issues. Strategies for clinical application are offered throughout the book and new chapters on mindfulness, ritual, 12-step spirituality, prayer, and feminine spirituality enhance application to practice.

Casebook for Counseling Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, and Transgender Persons and Their Families
edited by Sari H. Dworkin and Mark Pope

This timely and powerful book seeks to fill the training gap in working with LGBTQI clients and their families. Thirty-one captivating case studies examine contemporary issues affecting these populations to assist students, practicing counselors, and other mental health professionals in assessment, treatment planning, and implementation. The emphasis is on what is said and done in actual counseling sessions, including diagnosis; interventions used, treatment goals, and outcomes; transference and countertransference issues; other multicultural considerations; and recommendations for further counseling or training.

Experts in the field address a wide range of issues across the topical areas of individual development, relationship concerns, contextual matters, and wellness. The cases presented include coming out; counseling intersex, bisexual, and transsexual clients; partner and marriage counseling; parenting issues; aging; working with rural clients and African American, Native American, Latino/a, Asian, and multiracial individuals; sexual minority youth; HIV; sexual and drug addictions; binational couples; work and career; domestic violence; spirituality and religion; sexual issues; and women's health.

Anne Marie “Nancy” Wheeler and Burt Bertram

In this bestselling book, attorney Nancy Wheeler and Burt Bertram, a private practitioner and counselor educator, combine their far-reaching experience to inform counselors and other mental health professionals about the legal and ethical dilemmas that can arise in practice. In addition to providing a broad overview of the law and ethics, including coverage of crucial changes and new and emerging concerns since publication of the last edition, they discuss current information on federal and state law, professionals’ legal and ethical responsibilities, and how to manage the risks inherent in the delivery of mental health services.

This edition contains new chapters on the use of social media and legal and ethical issues in counseling diverse populations, as well as updates to HIPAA, a new legal/ethical decision-making model, and legal risks specific to counselor educators such as recent court cases involving students’ work with LGBT clients. The issues surrounding civil malpractice liability and licensure board complaints, confidentiality, duty to warn, suicide and threats of harm to self, professional boundaries, records and documentation, and managing a counseling practice are also addressed in detail.

Upon publication, CE credit for reading the Sixth Edition and passing a test will be available at counseling.org/catl. Successful completion of the exam will also entitle you to a 10% discount on your ACA Insurance Trust–endorsed liability insurance (HPSO) renewal for 3 consecutive years. The 10% discount is available for individual policies only and is subject to a $100 minimum premium.

Counseling and Psychotherapy: Theories and Interventions, Fifth Edition edited by David Capuzzi and Douglas R. Gross

This student-friendly introductory text provides a thorough overview of each of the following widely used theories: psychoanalytic, Jungian, Adlerian, existential, person-centered, Gestalt, cognitive–behavioral, dialectical behavior, rational emotive behavior, reality therapy/choice theory, family, feminist, transpersonal, and integrative. Experts examine each theory from the perspective of its historical background, major constructs, goals, cross-cultural considerations, and limitations. Traditional and brief interventions integrate theory with specific counseling strategies, giving students further insight into the counseling process and guidance in developing their personal counseling style. A consistent case study across chapters reinforces the differences between theories and illustrates assessment of client concerns and treatment planning. Introductory chapters explore core dimensions and brief approaches to the helping relationship and how to best deliver counseling and advocacy services to diverse client groups. A complimentary test manual and PowerPoints for instructors’ use are available by request on university letterhead.

NEW RELEASES

The Creative Arts in Counseling, Fourth Edition
Samuel T. Gladding

“Inspirational and amazingly comprehensive, this book offers a truly exceptional array of creative interventions and innovative strategies for practicing counselors working in diverse counseling settings. It is artfully written, provides myriad vivid examples, and is a genuine treasure. Dr. Gladding has hit a home run!”

—Thelma Duffey, PhD
Founding President, Association for Creativity in Counseling
The University of Texas at San Antonio

In this detailed examination of the expressive therapies, Dr. Gladding demonstrates how music, dance, imagery, visual arts, literature, drama, and humor can be used effectively in counseling. Combining history, theory, and application, he provides a rationale for using each art form with how-to strategies for working with clients of all ages and diverse cultural backgrounds to promote positive change and growth. This fourth edition includes “Creative Reflection” sections that give readers an opportunity to ponder their own creativity and, for greater ease of use, a new chapter that briefly describes each of the 117 exercises found in the book.

Play Therapy: Basics and Beyond
Second Edition
Terry Kottman

“This volume will be of great value to professionals entering the field, as well as to experienced play therapists expanding their scope of practice, teaching graduate classes, or looking for a good solid reference.”

—Risë VanFleet, PhD, RPT-S
President, Family Enhancement & Play Therapy Center

Written for use in play therapy and child counseling courses, this extraordinarily practical text provides a detailed examination of basic and advanced play therapy concepts and skills and guidance on when and how to use them. Kottman’s multitheoretical approach and wealth of explicit techniques are also helpful for clinicians who want to gain greater insight into children’s minds and enhance therapeutic communication through the power of play.

After a discussion of the basic concepts and logistical aspects of play therapy, Kottman illustrates commonly used play therapy skills and more advanced skills. Introduced in this edition is a new chapter on working with parents and teachers to increase the effectiveness of play therapy. Practice exercises and “Questions to Ponder” throughout the text facilitate the skill-building and self-examination process, and a final chapter on professional concerns addresses important issues facing mental health professionals who practice play therapy.

Developing & Managing Your School Guidance & Counseling Program, Fifth Edition
Norman C. Gysbers and Patricia Henderson

Five phases for establishing and improving Pre-K–12 comprehensive guidance and counseling programs serve as the organizational framework for this enduring, influential textbook written for counselor educators and their students, school leaders, practicing school counselors, and state or district supervisors. The fifth edition of this bestseller expands and extends Gysbers and Henderson’s acclaimed model for planning, designing, implementing, evaluating, and enhancing counseling programs and has been fully updated to reflect current theory and practice, including knowledge gained through various state and local adaptations of the model since publication of the last edition.

New to this edition are increased attention to diversity and the range of issues students present, counselor accountability, and the roles and responsibilities of district- and building-level guidance and counseling leaders in an increasingly complex educational environment. An abundant array of examples, sample forms, job descriptions, evaluation surveys, flyers, letters, and procedures used by various states and school districts clearly illustrate each step of program development. At the end of each chapter, a new feature called “Your Progress Check” functions as a tracking tool for growth at every stage of the change process.

Counseling Children: A Core Issues Approach
Richard W. Halstead, Dale-Elizabeth Pehrsson, and Jodi Mullen

“This easy-to-read text can be used both as a professional development resource for practitioners and as a succinct textbook for students. As department chair, my first response after reading the book was to contact the professor in our department who teaches Counseling Children with the comment: ‘Here’s a new book for your class!’”

—LeeAnn Eschbach, PhD, NCC, LPC
University of Scranton

This innovative book offers a means for practitioners in community, mental health, and school settings to better assess, treat, and monitor children’s underlying issues. The diagnostic framework presented helps uncover the nature of children’s core concerns and how to address the issues they are struggling with. Part I provides an orientation to the core issues approach and how to conceptualize the nature of clients’ presenting concerns. Part II describes intervention strategies for work with children, including narrative approaches, play therapy, sand tray therapy, and expressive arts therapy. The final chapter gives suggestions for bringing parents, teachers, and other professionals together as a collaborative team.

Statistical Methods for Validation of Assessment Scale Data in Counseling and Related Fields
Dimiter M. Dimitrov

This instructive book presents statistical methods and procedures for the validation of assessment scale data used in counseling, psychology, education, and related fields. In Part I, measurement scales, reliability, and the unified construct-based model of validity are discussed as well as key steps in instrument development. Part II describes factor analysis in construct validation, including exploratory factor analysis, confirmatory factor analysis, and models of multitrait-multimethod data analysis. Traditional and Rasch-based analysis of binary and rating scales are examined in Part III.

Dr. Dimitrov offers students, researchers, and practitioners step-by-step guidance on contemporary methodological principles, statistical methods, and psychometric procedures useful in the development or validation of reliable assessment scale data. Numerous examples, tables, and figures throughout the text illustrate the underlying principles of measurement in a clear and concise manner for practical application.

Understanding People in Context: The Ecological Perspective in Counseling
edited by Ellen P. Cook

This unique book emphasizes applications for individual counseling, group work, and community counseling that consider clients as individuals within the contexts of families, cultural groups, workplaces, and communities. The ecological perspective is a strengths-based approach to well-being that integrates diverse theoretical models under one conceptual framework and assists counselors in deciding when, where, and how to use various change strategies. It highlights the interactional nature of human behavior and the importance of meaning making in helping clients cope with challenges and develop more satisfying and productive lives.

Part I describes the theoretical research base and major tenets of the ecological perspective and its applications to counseling practice. In Part II, experts who have used the ecological perspective in their own work discuss their distinct version of the ecological perspective and how it is useful in counseling with diverse client populations; in assessment, diagnosis, and treatment planning; in schools; in substance abuse programs; and in faith-based communities. Implications for counselor training are also examined.

ACA Advocacy Competencies: A Social Justice Framework for Counselors
edited by Manivong J. Ratts, Rebecca L. Toporek, and Judith A. Lewis

“Examples of implementing advocacy strategies in a range of settings and for varied purposes with individuals and groups are the strength of this very timely text. Each chapter brings to life real-world issues faced by clients, institutions, and counselors, as well as possible solutions through social-justice-based advocacy strategies.”

—Patricia Arredondo, EdD
University of Wisconsin–Milwaukee

“This book represents the best examination of more than 30 years of thinking about counseling on a systemic level.”

—Courtland C. Lee, PhD
University of Maryland

Experts discuss how counselors, educators, and students can use the ideals in the ACA Advocacy Competencies with diverse client populations, across various counseling settings, and in multiple specialty areas. Examples in each chapter provide guidance as to when individual empowerment counseling is sufficient or when situations call for advocacy on behalf of clients or their communities within the public arena or political domain. Thought provoking and engaging, this book is an invaluable resource for teaching and course work and a call for all counselors to participate in social justice and systems change.

Cross-Cultural Counseling: A Casebook
Clemmont E. Vontress, Jake A. Johnson, and Lawrence R. Epp

“This provocative book raises the standard for the theory and practice of cross-cultural counseling and is destined to be a classic in the field.”

—Courtland C. Lee, PhD
University of Maryland

In this classic text, case studies of clients representing many different cultural, racial, and ethnic backgrounds illustrate the subtle dimensions of counseling culturally different clients. Case topics discussed include sexual orientation issues, conflicts within cultures, abuse, violence, physical disability, grief, and more. In each case, the client’s history is presented, followed by three analyses: The first is from a conceptual perspective; the second is from an existential perspective, which uses a universal model to counsel culturally different clients; and the third is based on the DSM diagnostic model. A brief explanation and sample discussion questions follow to provide the reader with a clear understanding of the complexities of each case and a rationale for each analysis.

ACA Code of Ethics
As Approved by the ACA Governing Council

The ACA Code of Ethics was revised in 2005, and substantial updates occurred in many areas including online counseling, dual relationships, and cultural sensitivity. The online counseling section addresses multiple issues that have arisen with advances in technology and provides guidance on ethical distance counseling practice. Also, a major advancement was made in the area of dual relationships. The previous Code recommended avoiding most forms of dual relationships; the new Code identifies circumstances in which a dual relationship may be acceptable. Nineteen state licensure boards have adopted ACA’s Code as the state-mandated code of ethics in counseling. Single copy downloads of the ACA Code of Ethics are available free at counseling.org/ethics. The Code is also available in packages of 25 for classroom and presentation use.

Creating Your Professional Path: Lessons From My Journey
Gerald Corey

In this inspirational book, Dr. Corey writes about personal and professional experiences throughout his 50-year career as a counselor, teacher, counselor educator, psychologist, supervisor, and writer. He shares recommendations and lessons he has learned—and is still learning—as a way to mentor other professionals and to promote self-reflection about creating one's own professional path. In addition, 18 graduate students and new professionals share stories from their journeys, describe challenges they have faced, discuss what was helpful to them in pursuing their career path, and provide recommendations for getting the most from educational experiences.

Topics covered include Dr. Corey’s reflections on and turning points in his journey, how he developed his approach to counseling and group work, the counselor as a person and as a professional, the benefits of being mentored and mentoring others, becoming an ethical counselor, choosing a career path, professional writing, and self-care.

See page 44 for a companion DVD of Dr. Corey’s keynote address on these themes at the 2010 ACA Conference & Exposition.

The field of disaster mental health has evolved substantially since the terrorist attacks on September 11, 2001—as has this book. First published in 2002 to share how counseling professionals responded to the acts of terrorism as well as the shootings at Columbine High School and other traumatic events, this book has been almost completely revised to reflect more recent tragedies and the dramatic growth in knowledge and experience within the disaster mental health field.

This third edition covers shootings on the Virginia Tech and Northern Illinois University campuses, the hurricanes in New Orleans and the Gulf Coast region, the earthquake in China, trauma affecting military veterans and their families, the financial crisis, and other tragedies that have gripped our global society in recent years. A new section titled “Self Care for Counselors and First Responders” has been added to this edition to address compassion fatigue, secondary traumatization, and debriefing strategies to aid those who are on the front lines following disasters.

This book is a vital, hands-on resource for all counseling professionals and administrators in every setting. The lessons learned, crisis plans, step-by-step protocols, treatment strategies, and insights from many professionals will help you prepare for the inevitable—the next disaster.

Developing Clinical Skills in Suicide Assessment, Prevention, and Treatment
Jason M. McGlothlin

“This book is a winner! McGlothlin actively engages the reader via clinical vignettes and relevantly presented clinical information, making complex suicide constructs simple to grasp. Without sacrificing academic or clinical depth, he has created a zesty book that will appeal to counselors providing direct service, counselor educators, students, and supervisors and supervisees.”

—Gerald Juhnke, EdD
The University of Texas at San Antonio

In this text, McGlothlin explains how to conduct assessment interviews and use suicide assessment tools, identify levels of lethality using his SIMPLE STEPS model, create a comprehensive suicide prevention and treatment plan, and work with family members. In addition, he offers guidance on what to do when clients kill themselves and examines the legal and ethical issues surrounding suicide. Case examples, discussion questions, measurable individual and group activities, and skill-building resources throughout the book link theory to practice. The final chapter presents stories from the field to inspire counselor reflection and growth.

Have you used therapeutic games that were mostly “game” and little “therapy” or used cards that only addressed an issue that brought the child to therapy every fifth or tenth turn? These games focus children and teens on the important issues that brought them to counseling—on each and every turn—thus maximizing the value of counseling time, enhancing learning and therapeutic change, and countering the criticism that play therapy is “all play” and “no therapy.” They will help children understand and cope with a wide range of life issues through play therapy. By purchasing different card sets, the same board can be used to create a variety of games.

The Mutual Storytelling Technique Game on CD-ROM
The Mutual Story-Telling Technique Game (MSTG) allows clients to select background storyboards (home, school, neighborhood, outdoors) and superimpose characters from diverse cultural backgrounds, age groups, and occupations. A set of domestic and wild animals and dinosaurs serve as characters and the child tells a story using the characters and background. The counselor then analyzes the story and retells a story using similar aspects, but with more pro-therapeutic messages and resolutions, thus presenting clients with greater choices for handling thoughts, feelings, and behaviors in real-world situations. The MSTG-CD uses a Windows-based operating platform. You can print the storyboard, make notes on it, and keep it as a running account of themes and progress.

Developing Clinical Skills for Substance Abuse Counseling
Daniel Yalisove

“This book takes the counselor-in-training from the beginning to the end of the counseling relationship. The concepts of substance abuse counseling come alive in the classroom through carefully prepared role-play exercises and an Instructor’s Guide, which is a real bonus for teachers and students alike.”
—James L. Sorensen, PhD
UCSF at San Francisco General Hospital

In Part I of this primer, Dr. Yalisove discusses counselor roles and the principles of substance abuse counseling. He then provides a synopsis of several key substance abuse theories as well as his own Building Session Goals and Strategies method and the Eight Stage Process of Counseling approach, all of which are practical, compatible means for learning and mastering clinical counseling skills. Part II illustrates applications of these approaches in clinical situations using experiential exercises, role-plays, and clinical scenario examples. Chapters on group work, counseling clients with dual disorders, family counseling, and working with diverse client populations follow, with a helpful chapter on creating client treatment plans and writing clinical reports rounding out the book. An Instructor’s Guide is available in the ACA Online Bookstore at counseling.org/publications.

Critical Incidents in Addictions Counseling
edited by Virginia A. Kelly and Gerald A. Juhnke

“Never in my academic career did I think that I would refer to a text as a ‘page turner,’ but Virginia Kelly and Gerald Juhnke have succeeded in creating one! Students will love this book, and counselor educators will quickly discover the instructional possibilities of a text chock-full of case studies prepared by professionals with their questions then addressed by colleagues. In this instance, the many cooks made a splendid broth.”

—Brian A. Glaser, PhD
The University of Georgia

This popular text explores the opportunities and challenges of working with clients struggling with addiction. Each incident examines the client’s history and treatment and raises key questions for discussion. Leading practitioners analyze each incident and respond with revealing observations and recommendations about counselor conduct and client treatment. The concerns of women, ethnically diverse clients, adolescents, older adults, gamblers, and court-mandated clients are discussed, as are the intricacies of family addictions, group interventions, and incorporating spirituality into addictions counseling.

More Than a Job! Helping Your Teenagers Find Success and Satisfaction in Their Future Careers

Richard T. Lapan

“This book is a must read for parents! It contains a treasure trove of ideas, exercises, and assessments specifically designed to help parents work closely and confidently with their teenagers as they plan their lives for today and tomorrow.”

—Norman C. Gysbers, PhD
Editor Emeritus, Journal of Career Development
Professor With Distinction, University of Missouri–Columbia

Motivating teenagers to become actively engaged in their own career development is not always easy, but this book makes it fun. Written for parents, school counselors, and private practitioners, More Than a Job! provides a step-by-step plan to help adolescents prepare for their future educational and career goals. Lapan’s TEAM (Targets, Examples, Assessments, Mutual Actions) approach includes a series of exercises and activities for teens and adults to do together that identify strengths and areas of concern, foster communication and interpersonal skills, enhance self-confidence, and increase resiliency and independence. These exercises not only promote serious career exploration through behavioral targets and goal formation, they also build a trusting and supportive working alliance between teenagers and adults. Real-life examples and assessment instruments are included to further enhance career planning.

MULTICULTURALISM & DIVERSITY

FACE–SPIRIT: A New Model for Integrating Spirituality Into Counseling and Psychotherapy

presented by Radha Janis Horton-Parker and R. Charles Fawcett

Although spirituality is acknowledged as an essential component of wellness, it is often inadequately addressed in counseling and psychotherapy. This DVD will show you how to integrate spirituality into the therapeutic process and promote client change, using both implicit and explicit approaches.

Implicit strategies are
F – Focusing on the present
A – Asking for guidance
C – Compassion cultivation
E – Existential empathy

Explicit strategies are
S – Simile
P – Prayer
I – Interpretation of sacred text
R – Rituals
I – Imagery
T – Transgression relief

Drawing from a multicultural perspective, the FACE–SPIRIT model provides practical and easy-to-understand strategies to enhance your effectiveness as a helping professional.

In this DVD, two scenarios in Spanish that serve as examples of interpersonal counseling are presented. The cases of David and Sonya are used to demonstrate situations that may occur in families of Latino origin living in the United States. Further, these cases can be applied to the training of counselors in Spanish-speaking countries. When viewing the DVD, focus on what is taking place in the sessions and in the counselors’ facilitation of the communication process.

Dr. Virginia Quiñonez and Dr. Carlos Pozzi demonstrate basic principles essential for the practice of counseling and apply them throughout the sessions. At the same time, you will observe behaviors that are relevant within the diversity of the Latino culture. Ultimately, you will have confirmation of the value of cultural competencies in counselor training. Although these are role plays, we hope that you will learn from the discussions with Dr. Quiñonez and Dr. Pozzi and that they will enhance your sensitivity toward cultural diversity.

Practical Strategies for Caring for Older Adults: An Adlerian Approach for Understanding and Assisting Aging Loved Ones

presented by Radha Janis Horton-Parker and R. Charles Fawcett

As America grays, older adults are living longer than ever before. However, this greater longevity increases the demands on family members and others who love and provide care for them. This DVD offers caregivers, counselors, and educators effective strategies to improve the lives of older people so that they remain respected, needed, and part of the larger social fabric. Horton-Parker and Fawcett discuss the characteristics of older adults, followed by typical situations encountered by caregivers.

Engaging vignettes and presenter commentary illustrate the underlying needs and mistaken goals of attention seeking, power, revenge, and assumed inadequacy that often cause perplexing behavior in older people. The presenters’ simple techniques create win-win situations between caregivers and aging loved ones that improve quality of life.

In this DVD, Jenny Mosley presents her successful classroom behavior management model Quality Circle Time, which encompasses a whole-school approach to enhancing self-esteem and building positive relationships. She gives professional and practical advice on how to run a circle time session and demonstrates her approach through various exercises with a group of students. Following a brief introduction, she teaches the skills, crucial steps, and key ground rules essential to effective circle time. The group session is followed by a teacher question-and-answer session. Includes a PDF of Mosley's book Important Issues Relat-

Bullying in Schools: Six Methods of Intervention presented by Ken Rigby

This informative DVD presented by Ken Rigby, an international expert on peer victimization and author of several books on bullying, gives clear, practical guidance on how to prevent and respond to bullying in high schools. Using actors and role play, the DVD features a typical bullying scenario and then demonstrates how the following six methods can be applied to the situation: the Disciplinary Approach, Restorative Practice, Strengthening the Victim, Student Mediation, the Support Group Method, and the Method of Shared Concern. By showing the advantages and weaknesses of each method, the counselor or teacher can see how each possible solution might work when handled with confidence and skill.

As well as being an empowerment tool, the DVD is entertaining and will be an invaluable resource for training school personnel in how to deal with this common and insidious problem. The disc includes a PDF booklet by Dr. Rigby with a summary of important information and discussion guidelines.

The Challenge of Counseling Teens: Techniques for Engaging and Connecting With Reluctant Youth presented by John Sommers-Flanagan with Rita Sommers-Flanagan

In skillful sessions with six culturally diverse teenagers, John Sommers-Flanagan demonstrates explicit engagement techniques for managing adolescents’ resistance to counseling. As his clients discuss a range of issues commonly seen in therapy, such as anger and destructive behavior, John shows how to connect with teenagers in ways that deepen the therapeutic relationship.
and maximize results. This DVD presents teen-friendly, goal-setting procedures and homework assignments; methods for giving direct, authentic feedback and interpretations; and using humor and self-disclosure to enhance therapeutic outcomes. At the end of each session, Rita and John critique John’s work with the client and offer helpful suggestions for counselors. Includes a Leader’s Guide, session transcripts, and additional resources.

GROUP WORK

PARS: A Model for Learning Process Skills
presented by James M. Benshoff, J. Scott Glass, and J. Preston Yarborough

The PARS (Processing: Activity Relationships Self) model for working with groups, couples, and individuals is introduced in this DVD. This flexible, here and now approach teaches basic processing skills that can be used to facilitate group interactions, encourage self-reflection of individual members, and help group members get the most out of group experiences and activities. The purpose and components of the model are discussed, followed by a demonstration of how to use the model with a group activity. The group facilitator then uses the PARS model to lead group members through processing their shared experience by asking such questions as

• How did the group interact?
• How did the group work together?
• What role did each member assume?
• How well did the group work together?
• What might be done differently in the future to enhance the group’s work together?

The PARS model is an especially useful tool for organizational events and structured activities because it helps group members reflect on, understand, and apply what they have learned. Group leaders will gain new skills that illuminate and enrich the counseling experience.

B. F. Skinner on Counseling
In this tape, Skinner covers vital issues such as why a counselor cannot help a client by focusing only on the client's feelings, what it is that changes behavior if feelings are not the key, the importance of the relationship between the counselor and the client, and what the counselor can do to help establish a system that operates on positive reinforcers rather than adverse control.

Rollo May on Counseling
The symbols and myths of American society, such as rationalism, individualism, and competition, no longer provide a satisfying context of living for its members. When the symbols and myths of society begin to break down, anxiety develops, and people need to seek help from counselors. Their alternatives are either to try to learn to live in a state of myopia or to struggle to create new and more viable myths, such as authenticity and genuineness.

THEORIES OF EDUCATION

Carl Rogers on Education
In this DVD, Rogers describes how people acquire significant learning and indicates the directions in which the educational system must change to have a real impact on students. He also discusses topics such as the role of the student in formulating his or her own curriculum, the circumstances in which learning will be a lasting and meaningful process, and the activities a teacher should engage in to foster the learning process.
