Coping Skills for a Stressful World: A Workbook for Counselors and Clients
Michelle Muratori and Robert Haynes

This counseling tool kit for stress management provides clinicians with hundreds of client exercises and activities. The authors’ creative techniques represent a variety of therapeutic approaches for helping clients handle traditional concerns, including anxiety, depression, anger, and grief in addition to heightened present-day issues, such as natural and human-made disasters, the misuse of social media, political divisiveness, social injustice, and mass shootings and other violence. Strategies for counselor self-care and client life after counseling are also presented.

Introduction to Crisis and Trauma Counseling
edited by Thelma Duffey and Shane Haberstroh

“This book provides an exceptional review of the contemporary sociopolitical issues, historical perspectives, and clinical skills critical to effective crisis and trauma healing. Incorporating issues of power, privilege, culture, ecological context, and relational dynamics affords a unique perspective and makes this resource a must for anyone working in the area of trauma and crisis.”

—Frederic P. Bemak, EdD
Founder and Director, Counselors Without Borders

This text integrates evidence-based models and best practices with relational-cultural theory, which is responsive to the many forms of traumatic stress and tragedies that clients experience. Readers will gain vital skills as they learn real-life approaches to crisis work with individuals, families, communities, students, military personnel, violence survivors, and clients who are suicidal. Trauma-informed applications of cognitive behavioral therapy, behavioral therapy, neurofeedback, mindfulness, and creative practices are included as are compelling case examples, multiple-choice and essay questions, and key topic discussion prompts to guide student learning.

Surviving and Thriving in Your Counseling Program
Julius A. Austin and Jude T. Austin II

“Drs. Julius and Jude Austin have written a most informative and engaging guide for students navigating the demands of their academic program and internships. They serve as mentors to their readers through their self-disclosure and the lessons they have learned. This book needs to be in the hands of every counseling student, as it offers extremely useful pointers and encouragement to survive and thrive in their program.”

—Marianne Schneider Corey, MA, LMFT, NCC
—Gerald Corey, EdD, ABPP, NCC
Professor Emeritus of Human Services and Counseling
California State University, Fullerton

The Austins’ down-to-earth, practical wisdom for successfully navigating counselor training and life after graduation give an insider’s perspective on graduate school. Both millennials and recent doctoral program graduates, they draw upon their own personal and professional training and career experiences, as well as shared insight from a diverse group of current graduate students, recent graduates, and new professionals. The result is a realistic, personal, and often humorous account of what you need to know whether you are beginning your counseling program or are already working toward your degree.

Neuroscience-Informed Counseling With Children and Adolescents
Thomas A. Field and Michelle R. Ghoston

“This is a serious yet understandable book that needs to be on every counselor’s bookshelf. It makes a superb text for child and adolescent counseling courses or an excellent supplementary resource for theories courses. The broad expertise of the authors speaks to a general audience, and they provide accurate, clear, and relevant information on neuroscience that is immediately useful.”

—Allen E. Ivey, EdD, ABPP
Distinguished University Professor (Emeritus)
University of Massachusetts Amherst

This is the first text to illustrate how neuroscience concepts can be applied to counseling with children and adolescents. Drs. Field and Ghoston first discuss general principles for child and adolescent counseling before moving into an examination of neurophysiological development from birth to age 18. They then provide in-session examples of neuroscience-informed approaches to behavior modification, play therapy, cognitive behavior therapy, biofeedback, neurofeedback, and therapeutic lifestyle change with diverse clients. Each chapter includes learning objectives, content alignment with the CACREP Standards specific to child and adolescent counseling, explanatory diagrams, reflection questions, case vignettes, and quiz questions.
