Affirmative Counseling With LGBTQI+ People
edited by Misty M. Ginicola, Cheri Smith, and Joel M. Filmore

This current and comprehensive handbook will guide educators, students, and clinicians in developing the awareness, knowledge, and skills required to work effectively with LGBTQI+ populations. Twenty-five chapters written by experts in the field provide direction for working with clients in an authentic, ethical, and affirmative manner that is tailored to their individual strengths, needs, and identity. To further a deeper understanding of the content, each chapter contains an “Awareness of Attitudes and Beliefs Self-Check”; a case narrative relating to the material covered; questions for further discussion; and a list of online resources.

The book is divided into four sections: (1) Foundations, which focuses on increasing counseling competence with LGBTQI+ people and understanding the science behind gender and affectional orientation; (2) Counseling Considerations and Counseling Strategies, with chapters exploring developmental concerns across the life span and treatment issues; (3) Specialized Populations, which provides detailed discussions of nine distinct populations and their specialized needs; and (4) Emerging Issues, which discusses the intersectionality of ethnicity and overlapping identities, the role of religion, and counselor advocacy. The book concludes with an extensive glossary of terms, both preferred and problematic, which counselors working with these communities should understand and use appropriately.

Relationships in Counseling and the Counselor’s Life
Jeffrey A. Kottler and Richard S. Balkin

In this engaging book, Jeffrey Kottler and Richard Balkin address common misconceptions about what works in counseling and offer suggestions for building constructive therapeutic relationships and facilitating positive counseling outcomes. Key aspects of the client–counselor relationship are supported by interesting examples and stories integrated with clinically useful research on counseling results.

Part 1 reviews basic assumptions about the nature of helping relationships and examines how and why they can empower client change efforts. Part 2 describes practical approaches to encourage client trust and growth, including chapters on the cultural and environmental context of relationships; the ways in which counseling is used to treat trauma; how exchanging stories solidifies and fortifies counseling relationships; and using creative and innovative techniques to enhance relationships. Part 3 discusses the influence of relationships on counselors’ personal lives and explores how counselors are affected by their work, process disappointments and failures, and deal with personal conflicts.

Assessment in Counseling: Procedures and Practices
Sixth Edition
Danica G. Hays
The sixth edition of this perennial bestseller updates students and clinicians on the basic principles of psychological assessment and measurement, recent changes in assessment procedures, and the most widely used tests relevant to counseling practice today. Guiding counselors in the appropriate selection, interpretation, and communication of assessment results across counseling settings, Dr. Danica Hays emphasizes the importance of integrating assessment scores with other information about the client to ensure accurate treatment decisions and culturally responsive counseling. This edition covers more than 100 assessment instruments examining substance abuse and other mental health disorders, intelligence, academic aptitude and achievement, career and life planning, personal interests and values, assessment of personality, and interpersonal relationships. A chapter on future trends in assessment that discusses the changing cultural landscape, globalization, and technology is new to this edition. In addition, there is expanded attention to high-stakes testing, projective assessments, and intimate partner and child abuse assessment.
Perfect for introductory classes, this text provides students and instructors with practical tools such as bolded key terminology; chapter pretests, summaries, and review questions; self-development and reflection activities; class and field activities; client case examples that highlight assessment issues and score reports; practitioner perspectives illustrating assessment in action; and resource lists for further reading. A test bank, PowerPoint slides, a sample syllabus, and chapter outlines to facilitate teaching are available for instructors’ use by request to ACA.

Counseling and Psychotherapy: Theories and Interventions
Sixth Edition
edited by David Capuzzi and Mark D. Stauffer

“This excellent and clearly written text has many impressive features, including comprehensive theoretical coverage, a strong multicultural focus, and sidebars to prompt students to pause and reflect on their learning. But my favorite component is the authors’ weaving of a diverse case study into every chapter. This book will help students articulate and apply theoretical concepts into their counseling work.”
—John Sommers-Flanagan, PhD
University of Montana

Featuring important theories and trends not covered in other foundational texts, this book is designed to equip the next generation of counselors with the tools they need for understanding the core dimensions of the helping relationship. Topical experts provide contemporary information and insight on the following theories: psychoanalytic, Jungian, Adlerian, existential, person-centered, Gestalt, cognitive behavior, dialectical behavior, rational emotive behavior, reality therapy/choice theory, family, feminist, transpersonal, and—new to this edition—solution-focused and narrative therapies, as well as creative approaches to counseling. Each theory is discussed from the perspective of historical background, human nature, major constructs, applications, the change process, traditional and brief intervention strategies, cross-cultural considerations, and limitations. The use of a consistent case study across chapters reinforces the differences between theories.

A complimentary test manual and PowerPoint slides for instructors’ use are available by request to ACA.

Reality Therapy and Self-Evaluation: The Key to Client Change
Robert E. Wubbolding

This concise book provides an accessible introduction to the core concepts of the WDEP system of reality therapy, especially client self-evaluation as a necessary precursor to meaningful change. It offers counselors the means to develop their knowledge base and skills for helping clients better self-evaluate their own mental health and well-being. In the first part of the book, Dr. Robert Wubbolding presents an overview of human motivation and the tenets of the WDEP system of reality therapy. In Part II, he presents sample dialogues between counselors and clients with interventions that illustrate practical strategies for helping clients make more effective life choices. These counselor-client interactions illustrate how to create specific questions and reflections for eliciting client self-assessment and awareness. These interventions can be integrated into the counselor’s own personal style and repertoire of skills. The techniques described in this book readily apply cross-culturally to clients of various ages and diverse backgrounds.

Cognitive Behavior Therapies: A Guidebook for Practitioners
edited by Ann Vernon and Kristene Anne Doyle

Written by established experts, this comprehensive book showcasing seven different approaches to cognitive behavior therapy (CBT) focuses on the implementation of these various theories in real-world practice. CBT is not only practical and applicable to many common presenting problems, it also has been proven to promote positive and rapid client change in an era of brief counseling. Chapter 1 provides an overview of cognitive therapy, highlighting the similarities and differences among the cognitive behavior therapies addressed in this text.

A mix of practitioners and scholars then discuss the following theories: behavior therapy, cognitive therapy, rational-emotive behavior therapy, multimodal therapy, acceptance and commitment therapy, dialectical behavior therapy, and mindfulness. Each of the theories highlighted contains a profile of the theorist(s), an overview of the basic principles of the theory, an explanation of the therapeutic process, an array of specific interventions, a verbatim case transcript with a critique of what was effective and what could have been done differently, and an examination of the limitations of the theory. The final chapter presents a single case study that the contributing authors discuss from the perspective of their particular theory, including how to build the therapeutic alliance, conceptualize the case, set goals, and facilitate the change process with targeted interventions.

Neurocounseling: Brain-Based Clinical Approaches
edited by Thomas A. Field, Laura K. Jones, and Lori A. Russell-Chapin

The integration of neuroscience into counseling practice is one of the most important developments in the field, offering an enhancement of the counseling process and rapidly influencing best practices. This text presents clear, straightforward information about how to approach all aspects of the counseling process from a neuroscience-informed paradigm. The reader will be introduced to foundational neuroscience concepts that inform case conceptualization before learning about neuroscience-informed approaches to counseling relationships, assessments, and specialized interventions. Throughout the book, leading experts provide guidelines, ideas, and tips for becoming a skillful neuroscience-informed counselor.

As the first text to address neurocounseling concepts across the counseling curriculum, chapters cover each of the eight common core areas in the 2016 CACREP Standards. In addition, chapters address several specialty areas of the standards, such as the impact of traumatic events; the clinical neuroscience of substance use disorders; wellness and optimal performance; and psychopharmacology. Each chapter makes direct connections between the material discussed and clinical practice. The text includes detailed case studies, questions for reflection, and quiz questions for classroom use. A glossary is provided for every important neuroscience term used in the text.

The Creative Arts in Counseling
Fifth Edition
Samuel T. Gladding

“Illuminating, inspirational, and eloquently written, this book has it all! Not only is it remarkably comprehensive, it is rich in history and jam-packed with creative resources for professionals working with clients in diverse settings. Dr. Gladding is a widely respected leader whose focus on creativity has championed its role within the profession. Through this new edition, he provides us with yet one more professional treasure.”

—Thelma Duffey, PhD
Founding President, Association for Creativity in Counseling
Professor and Chair, University of Texas at San Antonio

This latest edition of The Creative Arts in Counseling is a powerful, evidence-based examination of how creative expression can be used in counseling with clients of various ages and backgrounds. It explores the clinical application of music, dance/movement, imagery, visual arts, writing/literature, drama, play and humor, and—new to this edition—animal-assisted therapy, therapeutic horticulture, and nature/wilderness experiences. The history, rationale, and theory behind each art form are discussed, in addition to its clinical benefits and uses in counseling settings. Each chapter contains a variety of practical exercises that clinicians, instructors, and students can incorporate into their work, as well as “creative reflections” for personal and professional self-evaluation. For ease of use, the final chapter summarizes the 126 exercises that appear throughout the text.

Partners in Play: An Adlerian Approach to Play Therapy, Third Edition
Terry Kottman and Kristin Meany-Walen

Play therapy expert Terry Kottman and her colleague Kristin Meany-Walen provide a comprehensive update to this spirited and fun text on integrating Adlerian techniques into play therapy. Clinicians, school counselors, and students will find this to be the definitive guide for using Adlerian strategies with children to foster positive growth and effective communication with their parents and teachers.

After an introduction to the basics of the approach and the concepts of Individual Psychology, the stages of Adlerian play therapy are outlined through step-by-step instructions, detailed treatment plans, an ongoing case study, and numerous vignettes. In addition to presenting up-to-date information on trends in play therapy, this third edition emphasizes the current climate of evidence-based treatment and includes a new chapter on conducting research in play therapy. Appendixes contain useful worksheets, checklists, and resources that can be easily integrated into practice. Additional resources related to this book can be found in the ACA Online Bookstore at counseling.org/bookstore and on Terry Kottman’s website encouragementzone.com.

Stepping In, Stepping Out: Creating Stepfamily Rhythm
Joshua M. Gold

“Joshua Gold has crafted a timely, highly readable, and clinically relevant work that will be of interest to both trainees and experienced clinicians. Each chapter is structured to confront and reauthor dominant social myths about stepfamilies and offer creative solutions. Gold continues to make lasting contributions to the field of marriage and family counseling.” —Stephen Southern, EdD
Editor, The Family Journal

This much-needed resource offers insight into building and maintaining satisfying and successful stepfamily relationships. Joshua Gold emphasizes the principles and practices of narrative therapy as a means to address key concerns within the family system, reauthor dominant social myths surrounding stepfamily life, and create realistic treatment plans that are inclusive of all members of the family. Detailing the inherent strengths and challenges of the stepfamily experience, he provides an in-depth examination of the roles of each member in a blended family, including stepfathers and stepmothers, ex-spouses, grandparents, and children. This book is an excellent guide to thoughtful, practical, and empirically validated interventions for helping stepfamilies thrive.

Disaster Mental Health Counseling:
A Guide to Preparing and Responding
Fourth Edition
edited by Jane M. Webber and J. Barry Mascari

Since publication of the third edition of this book, titled Terrorism, Trauma, and Tragedies, disaster preparedness and response has evolved into a distinct counseling specialty with a formal body of knowledge, standards, and protocols—Disaster Mental Health Counseling (DMHC). This book provides current, skill-building information on DMHC for counselors, educators, students, and mental health responders in agencies, schools, universities, and private practice. Experts in the field focus on effective clinical interventions with survivors in the immediate, intermediate, and long-term aftermath of traumatic events.

This extensively revised edition meets the CACREP standards for disaster and trauma competencies and is divided into three sections that discuss DMHC foundations and skills, specific responses to tragedies in a variety of settings with diverse populations, and disasters affecting students. In each chapter, responders’ personal stories and vital lessons learned are shared through an “In Our Own Words” feature.

Postmodern Career Counseling: A Handbook of Culture, Context, and Cases
edited by Louis A. Busacca and Mark C. Rehfuss

"Leading the way with their own vision and scholarly touch, editors Louis Busacca and Mark Rehfuss have assembled a diverse group of contributors who showcase postmodernist-based principles. Educators, practitioners, researchers, and graduate students alike will find this book a ready resource for all things postmodern in career counseling theory and practice today."

—Paul J. Hartung, PhD
Northeast Ohio Medical University
Editor, The Career Development Quarterly

This user-friendly handbook describes postmodern career counseling models and methods designed to meet clients’ diverse needs in today’s challenging work environment. Readers will gain a solid understanding of the theoretical underpinnings of postmodern career counseling and learn practical approaches to counseling clients of various ages and backgrounds on occupational choice and other issues such as coping with developmental tasks, career transitions, and work traumas.

Drawing directly from their experiences with clients, career counseling experts link theory to practice in 17 application chapters that demonstrate the process of postmodern career assessment and intervention embedded in culture and context. Multicultural case vignettes and a “Practical Application Guide” feature in each of these chapters facilitate classroom learning and discussion.

Evaluating Student Learning Outcomes in Counselor Education
written and edited by Casey A. Barrio Minton, Donna M. Gibson, and Carrie A. Wachter Morris

“They did it! Finally, an easy-to-use, application-oriented, how-to manual for conceptualizing, constructing, assessing, and evaluating student learning outcomes. This is a must-read book for every counselor educator!”
—Bradley T. Erford, PhD
Loyola University Maryland

“This first-of-its-kind resource is essential to counselor educators seeking CACREP program accreditation or compliance with regional accreditation standards. The authors bring the material to life through practical examples that illustrate how assessment can be applied in the real world.”
—Victoria E. Kress, PhD
Youngstown State University

This timely text provides step-by-step guidance for developing comprehensive Student Learning Outcome (SLO) evaluation plans to meet accountability expectations. The first and second parts of the book lay the foundation for the SLO process and provide guidance for identifying and developing direct and indirect measures of student learning. Part III offers strategies for creating measures; collecting, managing, and reporting student data; and using data to ensure competence. In Part IV, counselor educators across the country offer hands-on application through a variety of SLO activities and rubrics linked to the curricular and specialty areas of the 2016 CACREP Standards.

Using Technology to Enhance Clinical Supervision
edited by Tony Rousmaniere and Edina Renfro-Michel

As technological advances increasingly affect counselor training and supervision, counselors grapple with how to best make technology work to expand the scope, effectiveness, and quality of supervision. This is the first comprehensive research and practice-based guide for understanding and assessing supervision technology and for using it to improve the breadth and depth of services offered to supervisees and clients. Written by supervisors, for supervisors—in a clear, jargon-free style—it examines the technology that is currently available and how and when to use it. Part I provides a thorough review of the technological, legal, ethical, cultural, accessibility, and security competencies that are the foundation for effectively integrating technology into clinical supervision. Part II presents applications of the most prominent and innovative uses of technology across the major domains in counseling, along with best practices for delivery. Each chapter in this section contains a literature review, concrete examples for use, case examples, and lessons learned.

Group Work With Persons With Disabilities
Sheri Bauman and Linda R. Shaw

“Through sound research and innovative practice, the authors provide both group work novices and experts with an exploration of how to more competently and intentionally serve individuals with disabilities—a group that has been overlooked for far too long. This strengths-based resource is a useful advocacy tool for clinicians and educators committed to fostering growth with this population.”
—Sam Steen, PhD
George Washington University

This one-of-a-kind manual provides direction for leading groups of people with disabilities or groups that have members with disabilities. Viewing disability as a single aspect of a multifaceted person, Drs. Sheri Bauman and Linda Shaw emphasize practical skill building and training for facilitating task, psychoeducational, counseling, family, and psychotherapy groups across various settings. Topics examined in Part I include common themes in groups that focus on disability; various group formats, including groups using technological platforms; issues of diversity that exist simultaneously with ability; group composition; ethical concerns; and training considerations and logistical accommodations. Part II focuses on group counseling with clients experiencing sensory, psychiatric, cognitive, and physical disabilities as well as chronic medical conditions. A list of resources, support information, and group exercises completes the book.

Addiction in the Family:
What Every Counselor Needs to Know
Virginia A. Kelly

This book identifies and addresses potential clinical issues for clients who have family members struggling with addiction, and offers concrete strategies for treatment. Viewing addiction as a family disease, Dr. Virginia Kelly explores the complex challenges faced by family members, examines the ways in which substance use disorders affect family dynamics, and discusses behaviors that help sustain recovery and create and maintain healthy relationships. A brief history of substance abuse is provided, as are the primary models of addiction and family theory. Chapters on codependency and the emotional, relational, and behavioral consequences of living with a family member with a substance use disorder follow. The universality of substance abuse is then examined along with specific ethnic and cultural differences. Family support group treatment options complete the text. Case conceptualization exercises that contain reflections, implications for the counselor, and discussion questions for application of the material are interspersed throughout the book.

A Counselor’s Guide to Working With Men
edited by Matt Englar-Carlson, Marcheta P. Evans, and Thelma Duffey

“This landmark contribution to the literature draws from the latest research and theory about men’s development. The authors express an empathic understanding about male socialization and explore why men are often reluctant to seek counseling. In a refreshingly positive manner, they address the particular needs of diverse populations of men and recommend how to modify counseling to work with men in different modalities and settings. This is a superb resource for any counselor who works with men.”

—Mark S. Kiselica, PhD
Fellow and Past President
The Society for the Psychological Study of Men and Masculinity

This book examines a variety of critical issues pertaining to the psychology of men and masculinity and presents successful, evidence-based strategies for treatment. Part 1 focuses on treating men in couples counseling, group work, and career counseling, as well as counseling men about their health. Part 2 explores the intersections of identity for sexual minority men, older men, and fathers, and discusses spiritual work with men in life transitions. Part 3 addresses the concerns of men in the military, prevention of sexual violence, and treating men with addictions and trauma-related issues. Part 4 provides the specific clinical frames of female counselors using relational-cultural theory with men, and examines using motivational and masculine-sensitive therapy with men. Examples and vignettes throughout the text provide clinical relevance, and reflective questions in each chapter encourage readers to explore their own biases and ideas about working with men.

“The authors urge counseling professionals to prioritize integrating the influences of culture, context, and oppression into all professional endeavors. This text is an important addition to the ongoing development of effective and ethical counseling.”

—Hugh C. Crethar, PhD
Oklahoma State University

In this book, Drs. Manivong Ratts and Paul Pedersen combine the very best from the multicultural and social justice traditions into a new paradigm, which will guide counselors toward a deeper understanding of the connections between these two counseling forces. This fourth edition focuses on applying multiculturalism and social justice in various clinical settings with diverse client populations. A completely new applications section contains nine chapters on working with oppressed client groups, including African Americans; Asian and Pacific Islanders; Latin@s; multiracial individuals; Native Americans; lesbian, gay, bisexual, and questioning clients; transgender individuals; women; and socioeconomically disadvantaged clients. Clients experiencing religious and spiritual concerns are discussed as well. Each of the chapters in this section provides an illustrative case study and numerous counseling examples.

Counseling Around the World: An International Handbook

edited by Thomas H. Hohenshil, Norman E. Amundson, and Spencer G. Niles

“This book delivers on the promise to increase global literacy through country ‘snapshots’ about the status of counseling. Counselors will view their professional identity in new ways as they read about common issues between countries and the unique country contexts that influence practice.”

—Nancy Arthur, PhD
Canada Research Chair
University of Calgary

In this fascinating book, native counselors and leading experts from 40 countries discuss the opportunities for growth and the challenges they face in their countries. After an introductory section discussing global diversity themes and issues, chapters focus on key countries in Africa, Asia, Europe, the Middle East, North America, Oceania, and South and Central America. Each chapter covers the history and current state of counseling in the country, theories and techniques that have been shown to work best in meeting the needs of the population, diversity issues specific to the region, counselor education and training, and possibilities for the future of counseling in the country. A comprehensive list of international resources and counseling organizations is also included.

Harm to Others: The Assessment and Treatment of Dangerousness
Brian Van Brunt

“This wonderful book is a much-needed guide for all of us working in the field of risk assessment for violence. I have worked in this field for many years and I will have this book on my desk so I can refer to it every time I get that gut-wrenching call that begins, ‘I am worried that this person could act out violently. What should I do?’” (This opinion is not the opinion of the FBI. It is solely the opinion of Dr. Mary Ellen O’Toole.)

—Mary Ellen O’Toole, PhD
Author, Speaker, Senior FBI Profiler (ret.), Forensic Behavior Consultant

Harm to Others offers students and clinicians an effective way to increase their knowledge of and training in violence risk and threat assessment while providing a comprehensive examination of current treatment approaches. Dr. Brian Van Brunt shares his observations, extensive clinical expertise, and the latest research on what clinicians should be aware of when performing risk and threat assessments. In addition, he offers numerous examples from mass shootings and rampage violence to help explain the motivations and risk factors of those who make threats. Two detailed case examples are presented to illustrate key concepts related to assessing dangerousness. Treatment options are then described, using a variety of diverse case studies to demonstrate concrete approaches for clients who have been identified as at risk for violence following a threat assessment.

DSM-5 Learning Companion for Counselors
Stephanie F. Dailey, Carnan S. Gill, Shannon L. Karl, and Casey A. Barrio Minton

This helpful guide breaks down the concepts and terminology in the DSM-5 and explains how this diagnostic tool translates to the clinical situations encountered most frequently by counselors. After describing the major structural, philosophical, and diagnostic changes in the DSM-5, the book is organized into four parts, which are grouped by diagnostic similarity and relevance to counselors. Each chapter outlines the key concepts of each disorder, including major diagnostic changes; essential features; special considerations; differential diagnosis; coding, recording, and specifiers; and, where applicable, new or revised criteria. Clinical vignettes help both clinicians and students visualize and understand DSM-5 disorders. Author notes throughout the text assist readers in further understanding and applying new material.

Teaching in Counselor Education: Engaging Students in Learning
edited by John D. West, Donald L. Bubenzer, Jane A. Cox, and Jason M. McGlothlin

“This book manifests the very heart of counselor education—raising issues, providing ideas, and nurturing standards that meet the highest goals of the ACES mission and vision… I am not aware of any other text that addresses the issues that this one does so specifically in the education of counselors.”

—Harold Hackney, EdD
Emeritus Professor of Counseling
Syracuse University

This book is intended for future and experienced counselor educators who want to learn more about the active engagement of students in the teaching and learning process. It contains chapters introducing various practices in teaching and provides ways to implement them. These practices include developing student–teacher relationships, building anticipation and readiness, employing technology, incorporating learning activities, making use of the seminar, implementing distance learning, using evaluations in teaching, and more. The book speaks to the complexities of teaching while also highlighting possibilities and the fulfillment that comes from engaging students in learning. It is intended to guide readers’ efforts to appraise their teaching, construct or reshape their own philosophy of teaching, and challenge growth beyond how they have typically taught in the past. School Counselors Share Their Favorite Classroom Guidance Activities: A Guide to Choosing, Planning, Conducting, and Processing
edited by Janice DeLucia-Waack, Meghan Mercurio, Faith Colvin, Sarah Korta, Katherine Maertin, Eric Martin, and Lily Zawadski

In this book, practicing school counselors provide more than 60 classroom guidance activities presented across the three major areas in ASCA’s National Standards for Students: Academic Skills, Personal/Social Skills, and Career Development/College Preparation. Activities are designed to integrate the ASCA Model, Response to Intervention (RTI), and the Social–Emotional Learning Standards, as well as to lay the groundwork for more intensive interventions, such as small group and individual interventions. Each activity clearly describes goals, materials needed, time estimates, directions, and processing questions and includes adaptation ideas and potential concerns. Introductory chapters, written by national experts including Rebecca Schumacher and Carolyn Stone, highlight the importance of working with teachers and the legal and ethical issues relevant to classroom guidance. Subsequent chapters focus on integrating classroom guidance with RTI, character education, and anti-bullying efforts.

Developing & Managing Your School Guidance & Counseling Program, Fifth Edition

Norman C. Gysbers and Patricia Henderson

Written for counselor educators and their students, school leaders, practicing school counselors, and state or district supervisors, the fifth edition of this bestseller expands and extends Gysbers and Henderson’s acclaimed five-phase model for planning, designing, implementing, evaluating, and enhancing pre-K–12 guidance and counseling programs. This enduring and highly influential textbook has been fully updated to reflect current theory and practice, including knowledge gained through various state and local adaptations of the model since publication of the last edition.

Exciting additions to this fifth edition are increased attention to diversity and the range of issues that students present, counselor accountability, and the roles and responsibilities of district- and building-level guidance and counseling leaders in an increasingly complex educational environment. An array of examples, sample forms, job descriptions, evaluation surveys, flyers, letters, and procedures used by various states and school districts clearly illustrate each step of program development. At the end of each chapter, a new feature called “Your Progress Check” functions as a tracking tool for growth at each stage of the change process.

The Mutual Storytelling Technique Game CD
The Mutual Story-Telling Technique Game (MSTG) allows clients to select background storyboards (e.g., home, school, neighborhood, outdoors) and superimpose characters from diverse cultural backgrounds, age groups, and occupations. A set of domestic and wild animals and dinosaurs serve as characters and the child tells a story using the characters and background. The counselor then analyzes the story and retells a story using similar aspects, but with more pro-therapeutic messages and resolutions, presenting clients with greater choices for handling thoughts, feelings, and behaviors in real-world situations. The storyboard can be printed and kept it as a running account of themes and progress. The MSTG CD uses a Windows-based operating platform.

Group Work Experts Share Their Favorite Activities for Supervision, Vol. 1
edited by Melissa Luke and Kristopher M. Goodrich

In this book, supervisors share more than 50 activities for the supervision of group work. Activities are organized across four sections: Facilitating Group Development and Process, Model-Based Interventions, Theory-Based Interventions, and Expressive/Creative Arts in Supervision. Each section begins with a detailed introduction by an expert who provides a current literature review. The group development activities are designed to assist supervisors in their ability to recognize and facilitate the group process, whereas the model- and theory-based activities will help supervisors ground their group work in familiar counseling and supervision frameworks. The activities in the Expressive/Creative Arts section contain action-based methods for use in the supervision of group work.

edited by Melissa Luke and Kristopher M. Goodrich

Volume 2 of Group Work Experts Share Their Favorite Activities for Supervision is a follow-up to the first volume of this handy resource. This second volume contains more than 50 additional activities for the supervision of group work. Activities are organized into four sections: Multicultural and Social Justice Awareness, Supporting Process in Task and Psychoeducational Groups, Setting and Population Specific interventions, and Developing Skills and the Coleader Relationship in Group Supervision of Group Leaders. Each section begins with a detailed introduction by an expert who reviews the current literature. The Multicultural and Social Justice Awareness activities identify and address the ways in which identity affects the group-as-a-whole experience, and also provide a model for supervisor competence. The activities in the Supporting Process in Task and Psychoeducational Groups section are designed to help supervisors more effectively develop and intentionally intervene in these types of groups. The Setting and Population Specific section offers activities for supervisors’ use with unique types of groups across varied contexts, and the Development Skills and Coleader Relationship activities support both beginning and more advanced group counselors in their work.

A Contemporary Approach to Substance Use Disorders and Addiction Counseling
Second Edition
Ford Brooks and Bill McHenry

Written as an introduction to the field of addiction counseling, this text covers the fundamental knowledge and skills necessary to counsel people who are struggling with addiction. Drs. Ford Brooks and Bill McHenry provide a straightforward, compassionate, and holistic approach to treatment and recovery, from the major theoretical underpinnings, to assessment and diagnosis, to relapse prevention and spirituality. With a focus on current clinical applications and how-tos, this book is ideal both for master’s-level addictions courses and mental health clinicians.

Topics addressed include cultural and gender issues; drug classifications and referral; assessment, diagnosis, and interview techniques; the continuum from nonuse to addiction; work in college/university, school, and community/mental health agency settings; developmental approaches in treatment; the role of the family; grief and loss in addiction; group counseling; relapse and recovery; spirituality and support groups; addictions training, certification, and ethics; and the importance of counselor self-care. Exploration questions and suggested activities are presented in each chapter.

Treatment Strategies for Substance and Process Addictions
Robert L. Smith

“Dr. Smith and his colleagues present realistic examples of the complete spectrum of substance and process addictions with integrated models of assessment, diagnosis, and treatment. This book should be mandatory reading for all counselors and therapists.”
—Jon Carlson, PsyD, EdD
Distinguished Professor, Governors State University

This distinctive and timely text examines the most prevalent substance and process addictions and focuses on current research and evidence-based treatment strategies. Major substance addictions discussed include alcohol, tobacco, marijuana, methamphetamines, and prescription drugs. Complete chapters are also devoted to the most frequently cited process addictions, including pathological gambling, sex disorders, disordered eating, working, exercise, shopping, and Internet/gaming.

Each chapter contains a listing of student learning outcomes, a case study with reflective questions, techniques for assessment and diagnosis, inpatient and outpatient treatment approaches, and resources for further study. With its emphasis on treatment strategies, this text can be used by practitioners as well as by professors in the classroom in introductory courses in addictions or in subsequent courses that focus on treatment strategies.

More Than a Job! Helping Your Teenagers Find Success and Satisfaction in Their Future Careers
Richard T. Lapan

“This book is a must read for parents! It contains a treasure trove of ideas, exercises, and assessments specifically designed to help parents work closely and confidently with their teenagers as they plan their lives for today and tomorrow.”

—Norman C. Gysbers, PhD
Editor Emeritus, Journal of Career Development

Motivating teenagers to become actively engaged in their own career development is not always easy, but this book makes it fun. Written for parents, school counselors, and private practitioners, More Than a Job! provides a step-by-step plan to help adolescents prepare for their future educational and career goals. Lapan’s TEAM (Targets, Examples, Assessments, Mutual Actions) approach includes a series of exercises and activities for teens and adults to do together that identify strengths and areas of concern, foster communication and interpersonal skills, enhance self-confidence, and increase resiliency and independence. These exercises not only promote serious career exploration through behavioral targets and goal formation, they also build a trusting and supportive working alliance between teenagers and adults. Real-life examples and assessment instruments are included to further enhance career planning.

Multiculturalism & Diversity

Working Effectively and Affirmatively With Queer and Questioning Youth presented by Colleen R. Logan

The life experiences of queer and questioning youth are not drastically different from those of other adolescents. However, one profound difference is that these youth experience their challenging developmental stages through the harsh lens of societal homoprejudice, where each stage and transition of adolescence is compounded by societal bigotry and discrimination. When considered along with multiple ethnic and racial identities, navigating adolescence becomes, at best, extraordinarily complicated and, at worst, harrowing and potentially life threatening.

In this DVD, Dr. Colleen Logan and her colleague Dr. Tiffany Rush-Wilson demonstrate through two role-plays how to effectively address myriad issues of adolescence while establishing client rapport and trust, affirming different identities, emphasizing strengths and possibilities, and ameliorating pain and disenfranchisement.

“Yes You Can!”: Art-Centered Therapy for People With Disabilities
presented by Judith A. Rubin

“By creating art, a person symbolically recreates him or herself and begins to put the pieces back together.”
—Mickie McGraw
The Art Therapy Studio

This film about courage, commitment, and creative coping tells the story of Mickie McGraw, who overcame polio and permanent disability to become an art therapy pioneer. Along with Dr. George Streeter, a psychoanalyst and artist, she cofounded and ran The Art Therapy Studio, a one-of-a-kind, art-centered therapy program in a rehabilitation hospital. Still thriving after 50 years, it has become the model for other art therapy facilities around the world in a variety of settings. This DVD tells the story of both of these individuals and of the unique program they developed. Using archival footage, interviews, and actual art therapy sessions, the film illustrates the structure and philosophy of The Art Therapy Studio, as well as the creative techniques developed there to help people with physical challenges find and restore their unique sense of self through making art. The model presented can serve as a blueprint and an inspiration for other art-based programs.

School Counseling

Managing Conflict in Schools: A New Approach to Disciplinary Offense presented by John Winslade

School counselors can play a useful facilitative role in addressing offenses at school without resorting to punishment. Restorative practices are about addressing the harm done to relationships by an offense, rather than framing the act as a challenge to school rules or authorities. In this DVD, Dr. John Winslade facilitates a restorative conference informed by narrative ideas.

The demonstration involves two female students, former close friends, who engaged in cruel and threatening behavior through Facebook after a conflict arose over a boy. The situation brings together a community of care around an offense, including the offender, the victim, parents, teachers, school administrators, and friends, to resolve the conflict.

Bullying in Schools: Six Methods of Intervention presented by Ken Rigby

Ken Rigby, an international expert on peer victimization, gives clear, practical guidance on how to prevent and respond to bullying in high schools in this DVD. Using actors and role play, the DVD features a typical bullying scenario and then demonstrates how the following six methods can be applied to the situation: the Disciplinary Approach, Restorative Practice, Strengthening the Victim, Student Mediation, the Support Group Method, and the Method of Shared Concern. By showing the advantages and weaknesses of each method, the counselor or teacher can see how each possible solution might work when handled with confidence and skill. As well as being an empowerment tool, this DVD is an invaluable resource for training school personnel in how to deal with this common and insidious problem. The disc includes a PDF booklet by Dr. Rigby with a summary of important information and discussion guidelines.

Promoting Growth With a Group: Performing in the Here and Now
presented by Samuel T. Gladding

This live demonstration of a simulated counseling group in the performing stage focuses on how both the leader and group members can foster growth. First, the film shares group leader skills that promote interaction, connectivity, and cohesion, such as active listening, linking, reflecting, confronting, supporting, and summarizing. Next, the demonstration illustrates the power of group members to help others and shows how the group environment can be therapeutic for members struggling with issues such as loss, indecision, anxiety, and regret.

Mindfulness Groups: A Demonstration presented by Allison Spargo and Shane Blasko

Drs. Allison Spargo and Shane Blasko provide two distinct examples of mindfulness-based psychoeducational group interventions for adolescents and adults in this DVD. Each of the sessions provides clear examples of how to teach cognitive behavioral mindfulness techniques, with the co-leaders skillfully demonstrating how to process the activities with particular emphasis on paying attention to group member reactions. They model both how to lead group members in the exercises and how to help group members monitor their own bodily sensations, wandering thoughts, emotions, and mental capabilities. Group members are encouraged to consider how they can continue to practice these techniques on their own and how they can use the new knowledge and insight gained during these sessions in the future. This DVD is instrumental for both novice and experienced group leaders who want real-life examples of integrating mindfulness techniques into their work with adolescents and adults.

Leading Counseling Groups With Adults: A Demonstration of the Art of Engagement
presented by Ed Jacobs and Christine Schimmel

In this group demonstration, Ed Jacobs and Christine Schimmel work with adult group members on actual personal issues. Using group interventions, they illustrate how to get all group members involved, engaged, and learning experientially and vicariously, in addition to working individually with members on their specific relational issues. Leadership skills, counseling theories, and creative techniques are captivatingly demonstrated.

Group Work: Leading in the Here and Now

presented by Peg Carroll

This DVD demonstrates how group members learn to participate in the “here and now process.” Peg Carroll periodically stops the group and dialogues with a group of outside observers regarding the meaning of her interventions. The effects of setting norms, dealing with resistance, trust, silence, scapegoating, and negative feelings toward fellow members or the leader are demonstrated. Includes three parts: The Initial Stage, Reassessing Goals…Transition and Flight, and The Group in Conflict and in Summation.

B. F. Skinner on Counseling
In this DVD, Dr. Skinner discusses key issues such as why a counselor cannot help a client by focusing only on the client’s feelings, what it is that changes behavior if feelings are not the key, the importance of the relationship between the counselor and the client, and what the counselor can do to help establish a system that operates on positive reinforcers rather than adverse control.

Rollo May on Counseling
The symbols and myths of American society, such as rationalism, individualism, and competition, no longer provide a satisfying context of living for its members. When the symbols and myths of society begin to break down, anxiety develops, and people need to seek help from counselors. Their alternatives are either to try to learn to live in a state of mythlessness or to struggle to create new and more viable myths, such as authenticity and genuineness.

Theories of Education

Carl Rogers on Education
In this DVD, Carl Rogers describes how people acquire significant knowledge and indicates the directions in which the educational system must change to have a real impact on students. He also discusses topics such as the role of the student in formulating his or her own curriculum, the circumstances in which learning will be a lasting and meaningful process, and the activities a teacher should engage in to facilitate the learning process.

B. F. Skinner on Education
This DVD explores issues such as how Dr. Skinner’s concepts of freedom and control are related to the classroom experience, what values are implicit in his theory of behavioral change, and how and where the process of affecting change will begin. Dr. Skinner continues by addressing how the increased leisure time afforded by a technological society affects our educational system and whether schools should help develop individuals who will be deeply concerned about the welfare of their fellow man.
