It was moved by Hurt and seconded by Helwig that: The proposed Resolution to Endorse the Seville Statement on Violence be approved (Resolution No. 1). Motion passed. The Resolution, as approved, reads as follows:

WHEREAS, The belief that war is intrinsic to human nature discourages action for peace making and more positive solutions for interpersonal and international conflict management; and

WHEREAS, The beliefs that aggression is natural and instinctive and that humans have "a violent brain" has been misused in research and creates an overall pessimism about the human condition and our ability to positively impact our personal worlds and affect more global issues; and

WHEREAS, The Seville Statement on Violence counters these widely held beliefs and places in our hands the ultimate choice of stopping wars and the responsibility for making peace on the Earth; and

WHEREAS, Counseling professionals have wide grass roots contact with broad populations and are in a position to inform adults and young people that making war is a learned cultural behavior and therefore living in peace is possible; and

WHEREAS, Teaching peace making on the planet generates hope for a future, countermands pessimism and engenders a sense of personal empowerment; and
WHEREAS, Teaching about declaring peace in both our inner and outer worlds is a primary focus of our profession and is a viable and valuable therapeutic goal; and

WHEREAS, Recognizing the American Association for Counseling and Development as an appropriate body to encourage research into the therapeutic implications/applications and to promote wide dissemination of the message of the Seville Statement on Violence;

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, That the American Association for Counseling and Development endorses the Seville Statement on Violence authored by a committee of leading behavioral and social scientists from twelve nations and five continents under the sponsorship of the National UNESCO Commission of Spain at Seville on May 16, 1986.
(The Seville Statement on Violence is attached to these Minutes as Appendix A.)

It was moved by Helwig and seconded by Canon that: The proposed Resolution on Involvement with Managed Care Systems (Resolution No. 2) be approved. Motion passed. The Resolution, as adopted, reads as follows:

WHEREAS, The service delivery systems for health care in America are rapidly incorporating the concepts of "managed care" into their programs; and

WHEREAS, The mechanisms for service delivery in the general health care sector impact directly the mechanisms for mental health care; and

WHEREAS, There is great concern among all health care providers that the concepts of managed care will be operationalized in such a way as to be detrimental to the quality of care provided and to the professionalism of service providers, as evidenced by at least six committees and boards of the American Psychological Association working on such concerns; and

WHEREAS, Future developments in the application of managed care concepts will have a tremendous impact on the manner in which counseling professionals practice and on the opportunities available to them;

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, That the American Association for Counseling and Development proceed with extreme caution in becoming involved with managed care systems and that Guidepost be used as a means of informing counselors of the specific dangers that might accrue both to themselves and to the profession through participation in such systems.

It was moved by Hill and seconded by Miranti that: The proposed Resolution on the Statement of the APA President-Elect (Resolution No. 3) be approved. Motion passed. The Resolution, as approved, reads as follows:

WHEREAS, The counseling profession has a long and distinguished history of scientific research that provides a basis for and guides its work in the promotion of optimal human performance, growth, and development in such areas as school, career, rehabilitation, sexuality, marriage/family, gerontological, and mental health counseling; and

WHEREAS, The counseling profession has never embraced and, indeed, rigorously eschews all practices purporting to guide, counsel, educate, or develop human beings that are not founded in sound scientific reasoning and acceptable methodology; and

WHEREAS, The American Psychological Association, first, through its membership in the Joint Commission on Interprofessional Affairs (JCIA)—a group organized to promote interprofessional trust and cooperation among the American Psychological Association, American Psychiatric Association, American Nurses Association, and the National Association of Social Workers—and, second, through its statements in the APA Monitor about comments made by members of the American Psychiatric Association regarding psychologists' qualifications, has acknowledged its endorsement of the JCIA resolution that states, "negative evaluations of other mental health professions may be self-serving and nonobjective, detrimental to the availability of mental health services, and undermining of public respect for mental health care," and that further states, "the mental health professions respect the autonomy, competency, and integrity of the other mental health disciplines"; and

WHEREAS, The president-elect of the American Psychological Association, Stanley R. Graham, has been quoted in the APA Monitor as stating, "Scientists like to think of themselves as the core of the organization (APA), and they probably are. Our scientific base is what sets us apart from the social workers, the counselors and the gypsies";

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, That AACP considers the statement of the APA President-Elect as false and unethical and that it violates the integrity of APA relative to its public position on such matters; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That AACP, in the spirit of the JCIA Resolution endorsed by APA, calls upon APA to disclaim the statement of its president-elect and to admonish him regarding such statements in the future.

It was moved by Brown and seconded by Hill that: The proposed Resolution on Certification (Resolution No. 4) be approved. Motion passed. The Resolution, as approved, reads as follows:

WHEREAS, Certification mechanisms related to various segments of the counseling profession have been developing in a piecemeal fashion, e.g., CRC, CIRS, CCMHC, NCC, NCCC, and additional certifications are being considered (supervision, for example); and

WHEREAS, Lack of coordination of certification credentials within the profession presents to the public and related human service professions an image of the counseling profession as naive, fragmented, and lacking in direction; and
WHEREAS, There currently is significant misunderstanding and confusion within the profession regarding the purposes of and the differences among the various certifying bodies;

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, That AACD opposes the addition of new certifying mechanisms pending the development of a comprehensive plan within the next twelve months that makes clear the exact scope of each certification program, as well as how each such program (1) interrelates with the others and (2) fits within and supports the whole plan; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That AACD supports the formation of a task force made up of credentialing experts and representatives of currently established certifying bodies for the purpose of developing a comprehensive plan for a certification structure within the counseling profession.

It was moved by Welch and seconded by Weikel that: The proposed Resolution on Opposition to Diagnoses That are Damaging to Women (Resolution No. 5) be approved. Motion passed. The Resolution, as adopted, reads as follows:

WHEREAS, Despite feminist efforts to keep several diagnoses out of the revised diagnostic and statistical manual of Mental Disorders, the diagnoses of self-defeating personality disorder and peripositional phase disorder (premenstrual tension) have not been removed. Though these diagnoses have been placed in the research section of DSM-III-R, disclaimers do not limit their use; and

WHEREAS, The National Coalition for Women's Mental Health, American Medical Women's Association, Women's Committee of the American Psychiatric Association, the American Psychological Association, the Association of Women Psychiatrists, the American Orthopsychiatric Association, the Association for Women in Psychology and the Women's Caucus of the American Public Health Association have gone on record as opposed to the inclusion of these diagnoses;

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, That the American Association for Counseling and Development also go on record as being opposed to these diagnoses as being damaging to women; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That AACD members monitor information on any instances in which these diagnoses have been misused as well as make creative and appropriate suggestions for better handling of these emotional behavior patterns in DSM-IV, such as the expansion of post-traumatic stress disorder to include rape trauma, post-incest and post-battering syndromes.

It was moved by Canon and seconded by Helwig that: The proposed Resolution on Provision of Direct and Increased Funding for the Occupational Analysis Program (Resolution No. 6) be approved. Motion passed. The Resolution, as approved, reads as follows:

WHEREAS, The United States Employment Service, U. S. Department of Labor, in the conduct of the Occupational Analysis Program provides the only comprehensive and systematic source of worker function and trait information based upon job analysis; and
WHEREAS, The Nation's labor market requires up-to-date and accurate information on job descriptions and occupational characteristics, including job duties, working conditions, interest factors, environmental conditions, physical demands, and the education and training requirements of jobs; and

WHEREAS, State supported Career Information Systems as well as other public and private career guidance instruments and related career exploration tools, are based on this program, including publications such as the Dictionary of Occupational Titles; and

WHEREAS, Funding for the Occupational Analysis Program has declined from $2.3 million in 1980 to $1.8 million in 1988; and

WHEREAS, At current funding level, the Fifth Edition of the DOT has been indefinitely postponed and consequently will not be available to assist clients, students, counselors and human development specialists in their preparations for the year 2000; and

WHEREAS, Current funding levels are, in part, attributable, to the absence of a line item appropriation under the Wagner-Peyser Act, where funding is covered within the line item under Section 7, Subsections (a), (b) and (c), and of any appropriation under the Job Training Partnership Act; and

WHEREAS, The National Employment Counselors Association and the American Association for Counseling and Development believes it to be in the national economic interest to support the Occupational Analysis Program consistent with its mission;

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, That the President of the American Association for Counseling and Development communicate directly with the Secretary of the United States Department of Labor and strongly recommend that the Secretary take the necessary action to increase funding and to provide for direct appropriation for the Occupational Analysis Program under the Wagner-Peyser Act and under the Job Training Partnership Act.

It was moved by Canon and seconded by Hurt that: The proposed Resolution on Corporal Punishment (Resolution No. 7) be approved. Motion passed. The Resolution, as adopted, reads as follows:

WHEREAS, The counseling and human development profession strives to enhance the potential of all human beings; and

WHEREAS, The counseling and human development profession works to endorse the dignity and worth of all human beings; and

WHEREAS, Research in education and psychology shows no benefit in the use of corporal punishment and long-term harm is evident; and

WHEREAS, Research shows that corporal punishment perpetuates a cycle of child abuse; and

WHEREAS, Schools are the only institution in America in which striking another person is allowed and condoned; and

WHEREAS, Better alternative methods of discipline exist;
THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, That the American Association for Counseling and Development go on public record as reaffirming its position of being unequivocally opposed to corporal punishment in the schools; and

Thank you for continuing contributions to the Council for the Advancement of Standards, CAS 10th Anniversary, 1979-89".

It was moved by Brown and seconded by Sweeney that: The response to the Courtland Lee question: "Who Speaks for Multicultural Counseling?" is that AACD reaffirms the centrality of cross cultural relationships to its mission and to those of its divisions. It also reaffirms its mission of facilitating the development of those persons who have been denied opportunities in our society because of religious values, sexual preferences, physical or mental handicap, race, ethnicity, or gender. AACD recognizes that Multicultural Counseling and Development fills a unique role in the Association because of its emphasis on multicultural concerns. It also recognizes the responsibility of all divisions to advance the concerns of those who are disenfranchised. Each division, therefore, has the responsibility to identify expertise within its ranks and focus that expertise upon the problems of the disenfranchised. In the identification of human resources who can facilitate the development of persons who have been denied opportunities in our society, emphasis should be placed on expertise and accomplishments. Finally, AACD, while recognizing that each division has a unique mission, urges collaboration in the accomplishment of that mission. It is especially important that the divisions of the Association work together as they strive to provide opportunities for women, gays and lesbians, handicapped persons and ethnic minorities because of the complexity of the problems confronting these groups. However, in urging divisions to collaborate, AACD recognizes that within the parameters set by the Bylaws of AACD each division functions autonomously. Motion passed.
